

Al Gore's Record of Crime, Corruption and Cover-up

(Partial Listing)

The 1996 Clinton-Gore re-election efforts received an estimated $5,000,000 in illegal contributions from the Communist Chinese. During this period, the Clinton-Gore White House permitted the wholesale transfer of America's most sophisticated nuclear missile guidance system technology to Communist China...

As a result, China's nuclear missiles (which presented no direct threat to the U.S. when Clinton and Gore took office) can now strike most U.S. cities.

More favors for Communist China ... while putting America at risk. Does this qualify as treason?

In addition to giving China America's most sensitive nuclear missile secrets, Clinton and Gore ...

- permitted China to have two anchor ports for its war ships in the strategically crucial Panama Canal (further putting America at risk); and
- successfully lobbied Congress to grant China permanent Most Favored Nation trade status with the U.S. (worth countless billions of dollars to Communist China).

All this, apparently, in exchange for millions of dollars in illegal "soft money" campaign contributions from the Communist Chinese.

Al Gore's Buddhist Temple money-laundering scheme.

The media likes to present Al Gore's notorious Buddhist Temple as just another run-of-the-mill campaign fundraising scandal. But Gore's Buddhist Temple event was much more sinister because, in reality, it was a money-laundering scheme for illegal Chinese money and is just one piece of the vast "Chinese money for U.S. nuclear missile secrets" scandal.

There is nothing routine about the "Chinagate" scandal. "Chinagate" is not just about Al Gore engaging in some illegal fundraising. "Chinagate" is about the likelihood that President Clinton and Vice President Gore sold America's most sensitive national security and nuclear missile secrets to a hostile and very dangerous foreign power for campaign contributions.

Al Gore lost his memory 85 times during questioning by the FBI about his role in "Chinagate."

Under questioning by the FBI for his role in "Chinagate" and various campaign fundraising illegalities and scandals, Al Gore lost his memory at least 85 times. The transcripts show that Gore answered:

- "I have no recollection" or "I have no independent recollection" at least 30 times.
- "I can't recall" or "I don't recall" at least 22 times.
- "I can't remember," "I don't remember" or "I'm not remembering" at least 23 times.
- At least one of the following 10 times: "I have no memory," "have no independent memory," "I have no special memory," "I don't have a memory of it," or "I have a vague memory."

Federal prosecutors conclude Gore lied regarding his illegal fundraising.

Gore suggested to the FBI that he might have been absent from meetings when his participation in illegal fundraising activities was discussed: "The Vice President also observed that he drank lots of iced tea during the meetings which could have necessitated a rest room break." (FBI interview August 8, 1998).

Here is Al Gore accepting a gift from Master Hsing Yun at the Hsi Lai Temple in April of 1996. This fundraising event was in reality a money-laundering scheme for illegal Communist Chinese money being funneled into the 1996 Clinton-Gore re-election effort ... at the same time the Clinton-Gore White House was permitting the transfer of America's nuclear missile technology to China.

(Over, please)

But former White House Chief of Staff Harold Ickes shot down Gore's "Iced Tea" Defense: "No one interviewed had a specific recollection of the Vice President leaving the meeting [November 21, 1985] at any point ... Ickes claims that if there were any interruption involving the President or Vice President, the meeting would have been suspended" until they returned." (Memorandum from the Special Assistant to the Supervising Attorney of the Campaign Finance Task Force, November 15, 1998)

As a result, FBI investigators believe that Al Gore, at a minimum, committed perjury and recommended the appointment of an Independent Counsel to investigate Gore (New York Times, June 23, 2000). But, predictably, Clinton-Gore Attorney General Janet Reno (Queen of Cover-up) rejected the FBI's recommendation.

Gore admits he committed a serious crime.

Al Gore admits to making at least 50 fundraising phone calls directly from the White House -- calls which generated more than $1,000,000 in contributions for the Democratic National Committee and the 1996 Clinton-Gore re-election effort. And this is a crime ... because Title 18 U.S.C. 607 clearly states: "It shall be unlawful for any person to solicit or receive any contributions in any room or building occupied in the discharge of official duties.... Any person who violates this section shall be fined under this title or imprisoned ... or both."

Gore cannot claim ignorance of the law.

In 1995 former federal judge Abner Mikva circulated a White House memo stating, very clearly, that "campaign activities of any kind are prohibited in or from government buildings ... also no fundraising phone calls or mail may emanate from the White House."

But this law -- which could not be more clear -- did not slow down Gore. Al Gore, under pressure, confessed that "on a few occasions I made some telephone calls, from my office in the White House, using the DNC credit card" -- thus flatly admitting that he broke the law.

Gore's preposterous answer to this fact is: "We're continuing our review of this matter and I think the entire episode constitutes further reasons why there should be campaign finance reform. The President and I strongly support campaign finance reform, and we hope it is adopted." In other words, Gore is admitting he broke the law, and then lamely says the answer is campaign finance reform.

Al Gore: "Fundraiser-in-Chief"

The Democratic National Committee (DNC) boasts that Al Gore helped raise more than $40 million for the DNC in 1995-1996. We now know that millions of dollars of this "soft money" were illegal contributions from the Communist Chinese.

Between 1995 and 1996, Mr. Gore was the main attraction at numerous fundraising lunches, dinners and receptions. In addition, he was the host of at least 23 White House coffees and attended eight coffees hosted by President Clinton.

Gore's office admits that the White House did not seek proper reimbursement for 18 coffees Gore hosted for DNC donors in the Vice President's ceremonial office in the Old Executive building next to the White House. Reimbursement bills were not sent at all for 11 coffees, and the cost of seven other coffees were improperly billed to Gore's official Senate account.

Maria Hsai, a long-time friend of Al Gore, has been identified as a Communist Chinese spy and is a convicted felon. Hsai organized Gore's infamous Buddhist Temple fundraising event.
